21ST CENTURY
WILBERFORCE
INITIATIVE SPEAK FREEDOM

Dear Friends,

The 21st Century Wilberforce Initiative (21CWI) is pleased to announce the release of the International Religious Freedom Congressional Scorecard for the 114th session of Congress. The Scorecard was originally created by international religious freedom advocate, Lindsay Vessey (Griffin), who transferred rights to the 21st Century Wilberforce Initiative. The International Religious Freedom Congressional Scorecard illuminates the voting records of members of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives for bills, resolutions, and amendments that support international religious freedom. For the 114th Congressional session, we selected votes on the basis of their significance to international religious freedom. The Scorecard tracks international religious freedom-related caucus work, sponsorship of bills, and votes in the House and the Senate.

International religious freedom issues are growing in urgency and importance worldwide. The purposes of the Scorecard are to help increase congressional awareness of international religious freedom issues, to encourage legislators to take bold action in support of this cause, and to laud the work of congressional religious freedom champions to the public.

I would like to thank those legislators and their staff who recognize the importance of supporting International Religious Freedom by working to defend persecuted people worldwide. There are currently 61 members of the International Religious Freedom Caucus, 57 members of the House Religious Minorities in the Middle East Caucus, and 85 members of the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission. The Senate does not have any formal entity to organize its efforts to promote international religious freedom.

A key achievement in the 114th session was the passage, with overwhelming bipartisan support, of the Frank R. Wolf International Religious Freedom Act, which expands U.S. ability to advance religious freedom worldwide through enhanced diplomacy, training, counter terrorism efforts, and stronger political responses to religious freedom violations and violent extremism. President Obama signed this into law December 16, 2016.

Also significant was the declaration that atrocities perpetrated by ISIS against religious and ethnic minorities in Iraq and Syria should be designated and prosecuted as war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide.

The need to protect and promote religious freedom is more critical now than ever. I am hopeful the International Religious Freedom Congressional Scorecard will spur the 115th Congress to more proactively address the continuing and escalating religious freedom crisis worldwide.

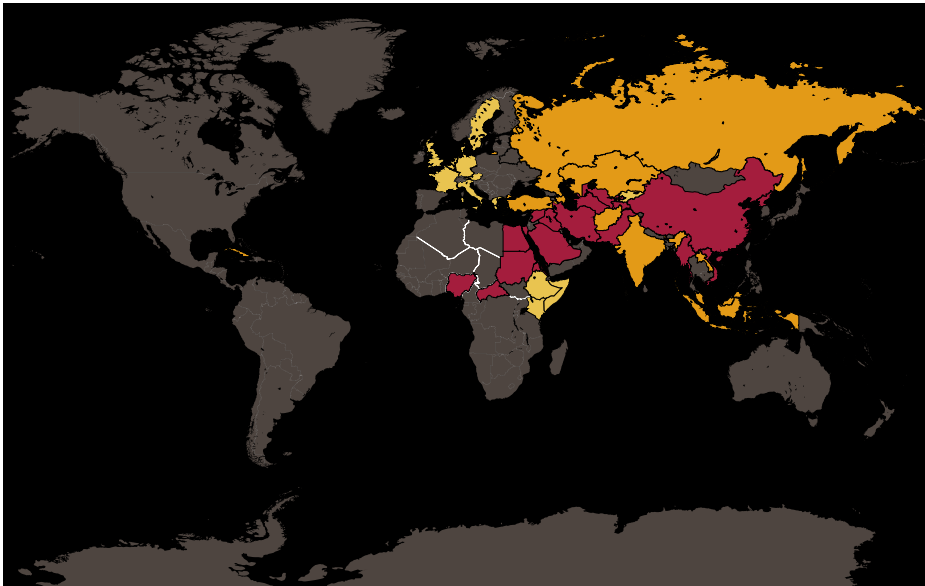

Results in this Scorecard demonstrate that religious freedom issues can transcend the partisan divide. We look forward to the 115th Congress and the renewed engagement of international religious freedom advocates across the country.

Sincerely,

Randel Everett, President

INTRODUCTION

Today, more than 70% of the world, an astounding 5.3 billion people, live in countries characterized by religious persecution, discrimination or restrictions. According to a 2015 Pew Research report, harassment of specific religious groups takes many forms, including:

- physical assaults and killings
- arrests and detentions
- desecration of holy sites
- discrimination against religious groups in employment, education, and housing

most persecuted faith community worldwide, and other religious minorities is the “new phenomenon” of non-state terrorism, particularly in the Middle East, Sub-Saharan Africa, and Asia.

This echoes the findings of the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom (USCIRF), which also identified non-state actors as a “major challenge to freedom of religion or belief” in its 2016 report.

It is against this backdrop of people of faith facing marginalization, imprisonment, violence, persecution and at times even death, that we present the International Religious Freedom Congressional Scorecard. International religious freedom is the human rights issue of our day.

Collectively, more people are persecuted for their faith now than at any other time in the world’s history. This includes more than 100 million people killed under repressive secularist and communist regimes in the 20th century.

According to a recent U.S. State Department International Religious Freedom (IRF) report, which assesses religious freedom in nearly 200 countries, terrorists are now the greatest threat to people of faith. The IRF report confirms that the threat to persecuted Christians, the

IMPORTANCE OF THE INTERNATIONAL RELIGIOUS FREEDOM CONGRESSIONAL SCORECARD

Many issues compete for the time and attention of U.S. legislators. The majority of Congressmen and Senators say they believe in the importance of international religious freedom (IRF), but too often international religious freedom bills and resolutions do not receive sufficient attention.

The purpose of the International Religious Freedom Congressional Scorecard is to keep members apprised of the opportunities to support this fundamental freedom. It also brings a measure of accountability and much needed credit to those who are making international religious freedom a priority.

Federal legislators can help our nation lead in the protection and promotion of religious freedom by publicizing various issues and cases, by passing bills in support of religious freedom, and, in some instances, by exerting pressure in support of religious freedom. It is critical that legislators use their influence to support those who are persecuted for their faith.

The International Religious Freedom Congressional Scorecard measures legislators' prioritization of international religious freedom and scores members of Congress based on their votes. Scoring covers important bills, resolutions, and amendments that protect and promote international religious freedom in both the Senate and the House, throughout the 114th legislative session, beginning in January 2015 and concluding in December 2016. The votes recorded here are only a representation of all the votes cast by representatives and senators during the 114th Congress.

It is important to note that while the International Religious Freedom Congressional Scorecard is a critical tool for analyzing a legislator's current international religious freedom voting record, it is not the only measure of that record. Traditionally, most scorecards look only at issues that were brought to a vote – they do not capture statements or other forms of discussion and debate, on and off Capitol Hill, that also contribute to the totality of a legislator's views.

Many bills and resolutions introduced in Congress are never scheduled for a vote. For that reason, the International Religious Freedom Congressional Scorecard includes sponsorship or co-sponsorship of important international religious freedom items that do not make it to a vote. Typically, international religious freedom items that reach a vote receive a majority of legislators' support. Thus, scoring only voted items would not be particularly instructive. In this way, the International Religious Freedom Congressional Scorecard is different from traditional scorecards.

Legislators in the House can also demonstrate support for international religious freedom through membership in the International Religious Freedom Caucus, the Religious Minorities in the Middle East (RMME) Caucus, and the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission.

Low scores do not necessarily indicate disagreement with international religious freedom, but reflect that it was not a high priority for that legislator. Conversely, high scores demonstrate that a given legislator actively supported international religious freedom legislation and has made support of international religious freedom a priority.

The International Religious Freedom Congressional Scorecard is an educational tool and should not be perceived as an effort to support or endorse specific legislators or candidates.

- The results from scoring this session are bipartisan. This holds true for the Senate and the House of Representatives for the 114th session of Congress.
- Congress can do more to prioritize IRF. Overall, 172 legislators (33%) received scores of A+, A or B. One-third of federal elected representatives in the United States are making international religious freedom an “above average” priority based on the results of this Scorecard.
- The Senate has been less engaged in promoting religious freedom than the House. While there are individual leaders, the Senate does not have caucuses. This lack of formal organization results in a lack of IRF leadership as a whole for the Senate.
- When measures do come up for a vote in the Senate or the House, they almost always pass with an overwhelming majority or unanimously. The challenge is moving a piece of legislation to the vote stage.
- There is ample opportunity for members of the Senate and the House to engage on IRF in the 115th session of Congress. Seven of the 14 resolutions introduced in the Senate have not come to a vote, and nineteen of the 25 resolutions introduced in the House have not come to a vote.

METHODOLOGY

CALCULATION OF SCORES AND GRADES

Letter grades are assigned based on the number of items each legislator supported. This includes voting on scored items and sponsoring or co-sponsoring international religious freedom bills, resolutions, and amendments. Primary sponsors and co-sponsors of any scored items and chairs/co-chairs of relevant caucuses received extra credit. By custom, the Speaker of the House (Paul Ryan) and the House Minority leader (Nancy Pelosi) do not vote on all issues and, therefore, they have not been scored.

Since Madeleine Bordallo (D-GU), Eleanor Holmes Norton (D-DC), Stacey Plaskett (D-VI), Amata Radewagen (R-AS), Gregorio Sablan (D-NMI) and Pedro Pierluisi (D-PR) are non-voting delegates, they are ineligible for a rating.

SCORING FOR THE SENATE AWARDED POINTS AS FOLLOWS:

Theoretical maximum points per measure are 3 points if Senator voted for it (1 point) and was an original sponsor or primary sponsor for it (2 points for either). So  $14 \times 3 = 42$  points. But 7 of the measures have not been voted on, so getting those 7 points is not possible yet. No caucuses or committees in the Senate.

Therefore, the maximum points possible in the Senate are  $42 - 7 = 35$ .

Co-sponsor for a bill or amendment or voting for it: 1 point
Original co-sponsor or primary sponsor for a bill or amendment: 2 points
Maximum possible points per bill or amendment: 3

When a measure passed by unanimous consent or voice vote, each scored member received credit for an affirmative vote.

Maximum possible point score for the Senate: 35
(7 of 14 scored items have not yet come to a vote)

SCORING FOR THE HOUSE AWARDED POINTS AS FOLLOWS:

Theoretical maximum points per measure are 3 points if Representative voted for it (1 point) and was an original sponsor or primary sponsor for it (2 points for either). So  $25 \times 3 = 75$  points. In addition, there are two caucuses and a commission, each of which can give Representatives either 1 (member) or 2 points (co-chair). So that is  $3 \times 2 = 6$ . Subtotal is 81 points. But 19 measures have not been voted on, so getting those 19 points is not possible yet.

Therefore, the maximum total points in the House are  $81 - 19 = 62$ .

Co-sponsor for a bill or amendment or voting for it: 1 point
Original co-sponsor or primary sponsor for a bill or amendment: 2 points

Scoring for the House also includes membership or chairmanship of the two IRF-related House Caucus groups and the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission. Representatives received 1 point for membership in each of these groups and an additional point if they served as co-chair.

Maximum possible points per bill or amendment: 3
Maximum possible points for membership/chairmanship of caucus or commission: 6

When a measure passed by unanimous consent or voice vote, each scored member received credit for an affirmative vote.

Maximum possible point score for the House: 62
(19 of 25 scored items have not yet come to a vote)

Once scores were tabulated, the mean and average scores across each group were calculated, and a letter-grade (A+, A, B, C, D or F) was attached to each legislator's score using a weighted bell curve. The result placed the median score in the C-grade range.

A grade of C represents an average level of international religious freedom support. We scored 14 items in the Senate, for a maximum possible 35 points. In the House, we scored 25 items and gave extra credit for membership in the IRF and RMME Caucuses and/or the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission, for a maximum possible 62 points.

A scorecard is an imperfect tool; there are additional factors that cannot be reflected in a scorecard. Not all efforts made in the promotion and protection of international religious freedom can be publicly recorded. Many members and their staff support international religious freedom through quiet diplomacy and casework, such as letters to the President and other legislators, which have not been included in this Scorecard. Legislators also prioritize efforts on behalf of their constituents. Finally, family-related issues may arise, such as the birth of a child or a death in the family, which may result in legislators missing votes.

HUMAN RIGHTS AND RELIGIOUS FREEDOM GROUPS FOR MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Congressional International Religious Freedom Caucus

Founded in 2006, the bipartisan, unicameral Congressional International Religious Freedom Caucus was established to address religious persecution around the world. The Caucus, which is only comprised of members of the House of Representatives, plays a critical role in raising the profile of numerous religious freedom issues in Congress. Its work has led to the release of many individuals imprisoned for their faith and ensures relief for many suffering under religious persecution.

Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission

Founded in 2008, the bipartisan, unicameral Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission is charged with promoting, defending and advocating for international human rights as enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The Commission undertakes public education activities, provides expert human rights advice and encourages members of Congress to proactively engage in human rights matters, of which international religious freedom is one. In carrying out its mandate, the Commission collaborates with congressional staff, the U.S. Senate and the executive branch, and continually engages with national and international civil society organizations. Membership is free and open to all members of the House of Representatives.

Religious Minorities in the Middle East Caucus

The Religious Minorities in the Middle East Caucus is a bipartisan, unicameral Congressional Member organization that serves as an informational and advocacy tool for besieged religious minorities who are central to a pluralistic, multi-cultural Middle East. It is only comprised of members of the House of Representatives.

About the 21st Century Wilberforce Initiative

MISSION

21st Century Wilberforce Initiative, a Christian non-profit organization in Washington, D.C., seeks to empower a global movement to advance religious freedom as a universal right. As religious freedom advocates, we mobilize and equip partners, including Christians and people of other faiths, to promote global protections and reforms through advocacy, capacity building and technology.

Under the leadership of President Randel Everett and former Congressman Frank Wolf, we opened our doors in January of 2015. Through strategic partnering, we advocate for those suffering religious persecution and train leaders in several countries to advocate for themselves.

CORE PROGRAMS

Advocacy - A voice in the midst of the most devastating situations

- Political responses for countries and individuals in crisis
- Mobilize faith based groups and churches
- Grassroots engagement
- Awaken with prayer
- Create materials that raise awareness, mobilize support and call to action

Technology - Employing technology to maximize impact

- Use social media to inform and mobilize on international religious freedom issues
- Internet Firewall Circumvention Advocacy

Capacity Building - Equipping those persecuted internationally to be champions for international religious freedom

- Help educate those displaced due to religious persecution around the world
- Provide training on international religious freedom for emerging leaders
- Year-round internship program
- Launch and support Wilberforce Alliance Student Chapters at various universities across the USA
- Host quarterly professional development forums for NGOs on international religious freedom
